C. Project Title and Description

Title of Project (school name)'s Bulldog Café (student coffee business for special education)

Subject Area(s): mathematics, reading, life skills

Approximate Number of Students Participating: 20 at most

Project Starting Date: October 2023

Project Completion Date: contingent upon funds raised and how long supplies will last

Need: Describe the problem or deficiencies that exist which require the improvements described.

The multiple disabilities self-contained classroom prepares students to progress in their achievement and skills according to their individual needs in the areas of language pragmatics and communication, social interaction, academic coursework, functional life skills, and vocational skills. Our inclusion initiatives have been beneficial as we have successfully implemented a Unified sports program and Choose to Include Week. The problem is that we need more opportunities for students in special education to practice the valuable skills they are learning in the classroom and consistently make real-world connections. We also need funding to continue the Unified program and Choose to Include week. The coffee business would solve both problems and be open to students from general education classrooms as well to continue our inclusion initiative. The business will focus on a range of competencies including money handling, goal-setting, marketing, and more to prepare students of all abilities for success.

Strategy: Briefly describe your plan to alleviate the need/problem.

I have done extensive research on starting a coffee business based on the experiences of three successful coffee carts from other elementary schools. I would begin by meeting with our school principal and our director of special education, Catherine Torbik, to discuss guidelines of what is and is not permitted and to schedule coffee days throughout the school year. I would utilize some of the allotted Unified Sports time to teach lessons involving special education and general education students regarding business management and marketing skills to prepare them for running the business themselves. Students will work together to follow recipes, sort and organize supplies, fulfill orders, and more as they learn how to apply the skills they are learning in mathematics, reading, and science towards real-world practices. We would also create a logo to print onto aprons for participating students to wear on coffee sale days. The money we earn from the coffee business will go into our Unified Sports program and our Choose to Include week. This year, I am planning to invite guest speakers with disabilities to attend our disabilities fair and read-in day. Funding from the coffee business and any extra funds we have from this grant would make these events bigger and better than they have ever been. The student coffee business will be fun and incredibly beneficial to students of all abilities at our school.
