CODE OF STUDENT CONDUCT

2017-18 Bowe School Code of Conduct

Philosophy & Intent

This section of the handbook has been developed by Glassboro Schools for the purpose of delineating school rules, practices & consequences. It is meant to be a general guide for students, teachers, and administrators. Certain situations may warrant measures different from those prescribed herein. In such instances, administrative discretion will prevail.

Bowe School would like to give your children the best education possible. Cooperation of staff, parents and students is essential in obtaining our goal. Structure and discipline are needed to ensure that all students are given the opportunity to learn in a safe, undisturbed environment. Consistent rules and consequences will help students learn that there are logical consequences for not following expectations, and are used to help students to better solve their problems through character building interactions with our school faculty. Parental support is also critical in teaching appropriate school behavior; therefore, parent communication is expected from all staff to ensure that children receive the same message from both home and school.

It is our hope that this guide will assist parents, students and teachers in the identification of unacceptable behaviors and provide a clear and consistent explanation of consequences such behavior will merit. As a listing, it is not intended to be all-inclusive. The intent is to identify commonly recognized behaviors that are unacceptable in the educational setting. The school administration and/or Board of Education have the right to administer discipline for any other offense that is in violation of the law of school district policy or procedures, or in violation of acceptable standards of conduct for our students.

School-wide PBS (Positive Behavior Supports)

Glassboro Schools have established a School-wide PBS program. This research-based model has been proven to promote positive behavior and prevent bullying. Through the modeling of school-wide expectations (rules), common vocabulary, student-centered rewards and data-driven decision making, our children quickly learn what a positive learning environment “looks like.”

Teachers begin by teaching children that there are positive consequences for following expectations. This includes rewarding students with specific, positive praise statements, Bulldog Bucks (tickets for our daily prize drawings) and various extrinsic rewards. The school-wide expectations and “what they look like” in practice are explained as needed, and are modeled several times throughout the year as part of our School-wide PBS role-plays.

Expectations for Parent Involvement

The Code of Conduct is meant to be a general guide for students, teachers, and administrators. Certain situations may warrant measures different from those prescribed herein. In such instances, administrative discretion will prevail. Parents are expected to:

- Review & discuss the Code of Conduct with their children.
- Understand and support the need for appropriate rules and regulations with regard to safety and conduct
- Understand that all students are expected to adhere to the Code of Conduct and that interventions will reflect that student's age, maturity level, and behavioral history/background.
- Participate in conferences as requested by teacher(s) and/or administration.

Teacher Statement of Responsibilities

Teachers have the responsibility to make every effort to treat each instance with fair and impartial judgment reflecting the age, maturity level and behavioral history/background of their students. Teachers have a responsibility to make sure that every student understands his/her obligation to the school community by instilling social responsibility and self-governance. Students must be given the necessary information in order to understand the need for rules and the application of them. In the enforcement of the policies, the teacher must make every effort to apply the Code of Conduct with consistency, reasonableness and common sense. Once a student has been referred to the office, the administrator's discretion will prevail. Rules of confidentiality must be followed in all circumstances. Teacher expectations and responsibilities include:

- Conferencing with parents and/or principal. It is essential that parents are made aware of the problem in a timely fashion and are asked for their help in eliminating the problem.
- Teachers understand that all students are expected to adhere to the Code of Conduct and that interventions will reflect that student's age, maturity level, and behavioral history/background. Harsh or unusual punishment should be avoided.
- Teachers will provide opportunities for students to role-play school-wide expectations in order to instill student social responsibility and self-governance.
- Teachers must notify administration of repeated violations of the Code of Conduct via Office Discipline Referral forms.
- All staff should model positive behavior patterns that student can emulate including positive praise statements. Proper dress, professional traits (such as no gum/food in the classroom) and tone/inflection are also very important.

Consequences for most behaviors are to be addressed by classroom teachers may include (but are not limited to) the following:

Classroom Managed Behaviors	Teacher Administered Consequences
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Tattling (this is different than "telling")• Negative Language• Excessive Talking/Calling out• Yelling• Not following directions the first time• Pushing in line	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Reinforce Desired Behaviors• Conference w/Teacher• Apology• Reteach Rule• Loss of Privilege• Return room/materials to original condition• Parent Contact

- | | |
|---|---|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Not keeping hands to self • Misuse of property | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Time-out • Loss of time at Recess • Referral to I&RS (CAST) |
|---|---|

In the case of more extreme behaviors that interfere with safety, general well-being, or the learning of our students, more serious consequences may be necessary. In these cases, the school Principal will work directly with the student and his/her family to help ensure behavioral success. Consequences for “office managed behaviors” include (but are not limited to) the following:

Office Managed Behaviors	Administrative Consequences
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Abusive Language • Defiance/Disrespect/Noncompliance • Fighting/Physical Aggression • Theft • Harassment/Bullying • Inappropriate Location • Purposeful Property Damage • Possession of tobacco, drugs, weapons* 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Parent Contact • Loss of Privilege • Time in office • Conference w/the Principal • Individualized instruction • Time out • Return room/materials to original condition • Referral to I&RS • Bus Suspension • Alternative study • Out-of-school Suspension • HIB Investigation (when applicable, as defined by the NJDOE)

*Glassboro Police will immediately be contacted in the event that at student comes to school in possession of any type of weapon or facsimile.

Procedure for Alternative Study or Suspension from School

Pupils may be assigned an alternative study or be suspended by the building administration for any of the reason listed in the Code of Conduct.

Alternative study is a consequence that will enable the student to attend school, but be placed in an alternative educational setting. Students will be able to complete their assignments and receive alternative instruction from a teacher in charge of the alternative study session. Students will also participate in activities that will help them to reflect on the prevention of the inappropriate behavior that the student exhibited that caused them to receive the Alternative Study with careful guidance of a teacher.

In most cases, suspension time begins at the end of the school day on the day that the suspension is issued. However, the administration has the right to suspend a pupil from school immediately when it is determined that waiting until the end of the school day will jeopardize the safety and well-being of other pupils. If this is the case and a parent/designated adult cannot be reached police and/or DCP&P contact may take place.

Parents will be notified of the suspension by telephone (if available in the home) and in writing. In cased that result in suspension from school a parent conference with the appropriate building administrator is required before the pupil may be permitted to return to regular classes.

Disciplinary Chain of Command

In the event that the principal and vice principal are out of the building and is needed for a disciplinary action, it is imperative that a second or third in command be designated. This person would be granted discretionary power to handle the situation until the administrator returns or is able to act.

1. Principal
2. Assistant Principal
3. District Administrator/Supervisor
4. Guidance Counselor
5. Lead Teacher (in the absence of an administrator)

Disciplining Student with Disabilities

For any student who misbehaves, a school should decide what action is most likely to correct the misconduct. In the case of a disabled student, the decision may need to take into account the student's disability. For students whose disabilities have behavioral aspects, for example, preventative measures (such as behavior modification plans) should be considered and facilitated through the individualized education program (IEP). It is essential to work cooperatively to address concerns when signs of misconduct by students with disabilities first appear, before more drastic measures become necessary.

If these steps are not successful, the appropriate use of measures such as time-outs or restrictions in privileges should also be considered, so long as they are not inconsistent with a student's IEP.

No prior determination of whether the misconduct was a manifestation of the student's disability is required before any of the above measures can be implemented. This includes suspending a disabled student for up to two school days.

When a student is suspended or is to be suspended, the case manager should be notified. A copy of the suspension letter sent to parents/guardians should be sent to the Director of Special Services. This letter should contain the reason for the suspension and the number of days of the suspension.

If the misconduct is such that more drastic measures would be called for, the case manager should review the student's current program/placement and consider whether a change in placement would be an appropriate measure to address the misconduct.

Where educators believe that more drastic measures are called for, a disabled student may be removed from the school for more than ten days only if the following steps are taken: First the case manager is informed. The case manager convenes a meeting with a group of persons knowledgeable about the student. The group could consist of the case manager, other members of the CST, principal & student's teacher. The parent must also be invited to the meeting. At the meeting, this group will determine whether the student's misconduct was a manifestation of his/her disability.

If the group determines that the misconduct was not a manifestation of the student's disability, the student may be expelled or suspended from school for more than ten days, provided applicable procedural safeguards have been followed and educational services continue during the period of disciplinary removal.

If the group determines that a student's misconduct was a manifestation of his/her disability, the student may not be expelled or suspended from school for more than ten school days. Educators can still address the misconduct through appropriate instructional and/or behavioral management strategies, students and teacher training initiatives (measures such as study carrels, time-outs or other restrictions in privilege, for example), so long as they are not inconsistent with the student's IEP, or (as a last resort) through change of placement procedures in accordance with IDEA. Moreover, the school district has the option of seeking a court order at any time to remove the student from school or to change the student's placement if it believes that maintaining the student in the current educational placement is substantially likely to cause injury.
